

ROY KAISER

The Nevada Ballet

Roy Kaiser began tap dancing at age four and started his professional dance career by age seven. Together with his four brothers, he performed on television and across the United States, including the 1967 World's Fair in New York. He began his ballet training at age 17 under the guidance of Karen Irvin and earned a scholarship to the San Francisco Ballet School and later with the School of Pennsylvania Ballet.

Roy joined Pennsylvania Ballet in 1979. He was eventually promoted to Soloist and Principal Dancer, performing nearly every principal male role in the company's classical repertoire. He also originated roles in works by such noted choreographers as Peter Martins, Robert Weiss, Lynne Taylor-Corbett, Paul Taylor, Choo San Goh, and Christopher d'Amboise. In 1987, while still performing, Roy was appointed Assistant Ballet Master. Upon his retirement from the stage in 1992, he was promoted to the position of Ballet Master.

In October 1993, he was appointed Associate Artistic Director of the company under the leadership of Christopher d'Amboise and later succeeded him as Artistic Director in February 1995.

Under Roy's direction, the company launched its 1994-1995 Season with a critically-acclaimed appearance at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., returning in 2000 as part of the Balanchine Celebration, which featured six companies highlighting 14 Balanchine works. In August 2005, the company made its international debut under Roy with its 40th anniversary commission of Christopher Wheeldon's Swan Lake at the Edinburgh International Festival. The company also performed at the Sinatra Festival in Portugal and the Meadows Award Ceremony honoring Paul Taylor at Southern Methodist University. And in November 2007, the company enjoyed its return to New York City Center for its first exclusive engagement in 22 years.

In June 2008, the company was invited back to the Kennedy Center for Ballet Across America, performing alongside nine other companies from across the nation to showcase the depth and history American ballet. Roy returned to Kennedy Center once again in November 2009 with Pennsylvania Ballet's critically acclaimed production of George Balanchine's The Nutcracker, presenting Balanchine's version of the beloved ballet for the first time ever in Washington, DC. The company debuted that same production internationally in 2011 with a tour to the National Arts Centre in Ottawa, Canada. And in 2014, they performed for the first time at the prestigious Vail International Dance Festival.

In April 2014, after 19 years, Roy announced he would step down from his position as Artistic Director of Pennsylvania Ballet. Over the course of his time at the Company, he successfully enhanced the repertoire with 90 new ballets and 35 world-premiere works. He currently holds the title of Artistic Director Emeritus.

In the fall of 2017, Roy was appointed Artistic Director of the Las Vegas-based Nevada Ballet Theatre following a national search; making him the fourth artistic leader in the Company's history.

An active member of the dance community, Roy is often invited as a guest instructor and has served on numerous dance panels, including the National Endowment for the Arts and the Princess Grace Foundation. He also served on the 2002 jury of the International Ballet Competition in Varna, Bulgaria and was a member of the artistic committee for the New York Choreographic Institute.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Peace and conflict resolution is one of Rotary's six areas of focus. In the Rotary Calendar, February is Peace and Conflict Prevention/Resolution Month. Rotarians around the world have and will continue to support service projects and peace fellowships to help to reduce and eliminate the root causes of conflict: poverty, inequality, ethnic tension, lack of access to education, and unequal distribution of resources.

While we generally think of conflict as something that occurs between two or more political entities, the most common form of conflict is domestic violence. According to the WHO, domestic violence affects roughly 30 percent of women worldwide. As many as 38 percent of the murders of women are committed by an intimate partner. Men are also abused by their partners as are the children of abusive parents and relatives.

Rotary Clubs in Australia are changing attitudes about domestic violence and generating positive community response with a multifaceted approach which grew into the Support, Advice, Facilitation, and Early Intervention ("SAFE") program. SAFE began as a social media campaign to educate the public about domestic violence using the hashtag #SayNO2familyviolence. Their efforts grew to include community educational programs and publicity events that have reached millions. One of the programs they helped launched was the Men's Behaviour [sic] Change Program ("MBCP"). MBCP is a 13-week live, online interactive program for men who can't — or won't — attend counseling sessions in person, because of work schedules or embarrassment.

"We once decided we would end polio when it seemed impossible. Why can't Rotary put an end to domestic violence?" Garry Higgins, Rotary Club of Maryborough, Victoria, Australia. Well said Mr. Higgins. Our quest to end conflict worldwide includes our, and our neighbor's homes. To resolve all conflicts, we must address the most common and most personal form of conflict, domestic violence.
