MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

The third question in the Rotary Four-Way Test is: WILL IT BUILD GOODWILL AND BETTER FRIENDSHIPS?

When most people think of goodwill, they think of a kindly feeling of approval and support. A businessperson also defines goodwill as the value a business attains through its brands and its good reputation. Goodwill is measured as the market value of a company over and above the value of its tangible assets.

Like one's reputation, Goodwill cannot exist independently of the business, nor can it be sold, purchased, or transferred separately.

In 2017, Amazon acquired Whole Foods, which had a balance sheet value of $4.7 billion. Amazon's purchase price was $13.7 billion, the $9 billion difference all classified as goodwill. That means 70 percent of the cost was for Whole Foods' potential for future growth, while only 30 percent was spent on buying actual assets, like existing stores or business systems.

Today there is more than $5.5 TRILLION in goodwill listed on corporate balance sheets. Goodwill is an intangible asset. But for many corporations, it is by far their most valuable asset.

The key to creating goodwill is goodness and consistency. Goodwill and reputation are built through consistent behavior.

What consistent behaviors should we, as a Rotary Club, perform to build goodwill? The answer is three-fold.

1. PARTICIPATION: Effective Rotarians make it a priority to attend club meetings and complete timely make ups. They are active on committees, fundraising and service projects. They are keen to attend as many club events and district functions as possible.

2. FELLOWSHIP: Effective Rotarians enjoy and value their relationships. They go out of their way to talk to those whom they do not know and believe a stranger is just a friend they have not met yet.

3. SERVICE. Selflessly helping others is key to creating goodwill and developing a positive reputation. Rotary international, district-wide and locally provides many opportunities for service. Effective Rotarians take opportunities to serve throughout the year.

When we use Question Three of the Four-Way Test to guide our decision making, we are doing our part to make the world a better place and that's what Rotary is all about.

Mike

ROTARY INTERNATIONAL'S PEACE CENTERS

The 10-week session in Kampala "enabled the peace fellows to network and share experiences in and out of class," says Helen Nambalirwa Nkabala, the peace center's director.

"I want my children to grow up in an environment where all people love each other regardless of the ethnic groups they belong to. They will know that we are all diverse, but we are all one," said Patience Rusare, one of the first cohort of 15 Rotary Peace Fellows.

In the last week of February, in Kampala, Uganda, Rotary Peace Fellows gathered at Makerere University for the inaugural session of Rotary International's new peace center in Africa. Among them, the peace center's first cohort represented 11 countries and spoke, in addition to English, a dozen African languages, including Luganda, Swahili, and Zulu. "Coming from diverse backgrounds, and yet with a shared desire for peace in Africa, they are the epitome of unity in diversity," said Anne Nkutu, a member of the Rotary Club of Kampala Naalya and the host area coordinator for the Makerere University peace center.

Did you know that Rotary sponsors Peace Centers around the world?

Each year, Rotary awards up to 130 fully funded fellowships for dedicated leaders from around the world to study at one of our peace centers.

Through academic training, practice, and global networking opportunities, the Rotary Peace Centers program develops the capacity of peace and development professionals or practitioners to become experienced and effective catalysts for peace. The fellowships cover tuition and fees, room and board, round-trip transportation, and all internship and field-study expenses.

Since the program began in 2002, the Rotary Peace Centers have trained more than 1,400 fellows who now work in more than 115 countries. Many serve as leaders in governments, NGOs, the military, education, law enforcement, and international organizations like the United Nations and the World Bank.

This is another way your Rotary dues are helping to make the world a better place. Learn more at <https://www.rotary.org/en/our-programs/peace-fellowships>

ROTARY PROMOTES PEACE

Today, more than 70 million people are displaced as a result of conflict, violence, persecution, and human rights violations. Half of them are children.

We refuse to accept conflict as a way of life. Rotary projects provide training that fosters understanding and provides communities with the skills to resolve conflicts.

Rotary Creates Environments of Peace

As a humanitarian organization, peace is a cornerstone of our mission. We believe when people work to create peace in their communities, that change can have a global effect.

By carrying out service projects and supporting peace fellowships and scholarships, our members take action to address the underlying causes of conflict, including poverty, discrimination, ethnic tension, lack of access to education, and unequal distribution of resources.

Rotary's Four Roles in Promoting Peace

Rotary and its members are:

Practitioners: Our work fighting disease, providing clean water and sanitation, improving the health of mothers and children, supporting education, and growing local economies directly builds the optimal conditions for peaceful societies.

Educators: Our Rotary Peace Centers have trained over 1,300 peace fellows to become effective catalysts for peace through careers in government, education, and international organizations.

Mediators: Our members have negotiated humanitarian ceasefires in areas of conflict to allow polio vaccinators to reach children who are at risk.

Advocates: Our members have an integral role as respected, impartial participants during peace processes and in post-conflict reconstruction. We focus on creating communities and convening groups that are connected, inclusive, and resilient.
